Charity Activity- “Sweets & Deepotsav- Distribution with gifts”

Scheme- Social Welfare

Organized by- Eshan Club

In the festival of Lighting, sweets and houses full of decoration, we can easily find some of our people with nothing like that. They are just like us but the only difference is the financial condition. Every year we see there are children who cannot even eat food properly, how can they celebrate festival? Just because they do not have money, there is no difference between normal day or a special day. Every year we find people with so many aspirations and dreams which left un noticed by our society and even by government. They are also people, they also want to enjoy, they also want to celebrate but they can't do without helping hands. So this Diwali our Eshan Club decided to celebrate it with some slum residents who are indeed rich by their hearts, under the guidance of our chief patron Dr. Pankaj Sharma through “Charity Activity (Sweets & Deepotsav-distribution with gifts to Nagla Haweli Slum & Kakreta Slum)”.

The joy which our 40 participants saw in their eyes and happiness which we shared with them was just immense. That kind of happiness can be felt by such events. This kind of joy has more deeper meaning. This is just a small effort in making our diwali wonderful and much better than any other ways. The joy of giving is the biggest joy. Instead of burning more crackers we decided to collect some money and distributed sweets and eatables which they can't afford in their daily life. Because of this, the college students were able to donate and share happiness with many people.

The drive began with meeting and wishing the people in slum areas and having an enjoyable time with children. Some diyas were lit on account of the special occasion. Next, sweet boxes and other edible items were distributed in as many households as our volunteers could visit. It was an overwhelming experience for our resource person, staff and students alike who comprehended the true essence of celebration from a different perspective. This also aided to develop a humble personality among our students which has always been one of our aims.
